Mock Trial Competition

Round 1

The San Francisco County Mock Trial program works with local high school students. High school teams compete in the trial of a hypothetical criminal case. Each school fields a team of students to act as lawyers, witnesses, and bailiff. Students prepare their case based on a packet of witness statements and evidence. Lawyers volunteer in the fall to coach students. They teach students the fundamentals of persuasive public speaking and evidence advocacy. Leading up to the city-wide competition, volunteers also critique students' performance. During the competition, attorneys volunteer to act as scorers and judges. The winning team goes on to represent San Francisco in the state and national competitions.
